

ABSTRACT

A method for providing information on packages of items comprising: receiving a consumer request for a set of items of interest; identifying potential providers capable of providing items that may satisfy the identified items of interest; dynamically packaging multiple items, each from a different provider selected from a database of potential providers, into a package of items; and providing information reflecting the package of items that satisfies the consumer request. The consumer is then able to accept the information provided, book the package of items with the potential providers, and purchase the packaged items. The method also provides a means for compensating the potential providers and the selling agents involved in the transaction.
